THE WASHINGTON CRITIC, Washington, D. C.

RICHARD H. SYLVESTER, - - Editor.

WASHINGTON, D. C. NOV. 25, 1885

NO "CRITIC' TO-MORROW. To-morrow, being a national holiday, no paper will be issued from this office. We are aware that the absence of The Chiric from their evening firesides will be a great. deprivation to thousands of our readers. but believing that national holidays should he religiously observed and socially enjoyed by all, we can see no just or generous reason. why the tollers of the press should be made exceptions to the general rule. Therefore, extending the compliments of the season to its friends. The Carrie will proceed to

THANKSGIVING.

It is meet and proper that we give thanks-not only because the President of this great and glorious Republic, it deference to a custom of old and respectable origin, has set apart a day for the purpose, but for the further reason that in this work-day world of ours, the human heart grows lean and sordid without an occasion now and then to rest from its fevered pulsations and beat responsive music to the melodies of good fellowship and the orisons of hearth and home.

The heart, like the lungs, needs ex pansion, and nothing is so well suited to expand it, as a grateful, loving spirit, moved by a sense of obligation to an offertory of praise. Therefore the wisdom of a holiday that reminds us by reverent tradition and executive proclamation, of a duty that, however rich or poor, we all owe to ourselves and to the Divine patience that so generously cares for our wants and mercifully puts up with our infirmities. The Americans have none too many holidays. It were better that the allowance were increased than decreased. But this is a day worthy, of all others, to be kept for the diffusive warmth and domesticity of its associations, and though not as yet of universal observance, the time will come when this child of a bleak New England winter, born of privation and cradled in the snows, shall be adopted into the great family of festivals and the broad sisterhood of all the States.

It borders upon impiety to say that we have nothing to be thankful for. Badly off as we may be, scanty though our resources, bitter our disappointments, profound our grief and blighted our hopes; far off as still may seem the realization of our day-dreams and unslaked the thirst of our ambition-we have yet to be thankful that things are no worse. There are degrees of misery beyond, from which we enjoy exemp-

Let us be thankful, then, and in honoring the request of the President, honor the memories of those who have given thanks before us, and bind closer the affections of those who give thanks with us. It will do the people goodeven if but once a year-to demonstrate that the kindly virtues clustering around old firesides and hallowing the remembrance of old friends, are not cold ashes, but Hving embers in their

But it must be borne in mind that gratitude is but another form of selfishness if it be not coupled with emotions of sympathy and pity for those less fortunately circumstanced than ourselves. duty in this respect, the Grand Army of Thanks Givers would swell to a mighty host and gladness perch on every roof-tree.

In the midst of the festivities of this time-honored season, let each do what he may, while thankfully enjoying his own blessings, to give the pinched little children in that comfortless tenement near by, the wan-faced mother who is fighting the wolf away from the door of the hovel over vonder, and even the homeless beggar, the windows of whose soul are grimy and cobwebbed, something substantial to be

The sound of the church bells summoning well-fed worshipers to songs of praise is music to the ear, but it kindles no fire on the cold hearth of poverty A stroll through the markets teeming with good cheer is pleasant to the eye, but the sight alone is thin diet for a hungry stomach. The proclamation of the President is good reading for all, but it warms no fingers and covers no rags. From all which it is to be hoped the readers of THE CRITIC may deduce a wholesome moral and an openhanded, big-hearted inspiration. Charity is said to cover a multitude of sins, so Gratitude may cover a multi#### tude of charities. THE ENGLISH ELECTIONS.

There are three leading questions involved in the pending elections in England which are now in progress. after a campaign of unusual bitterness and scandal even for that country.

One of these is the question whether Mr. Parnell's party shall return a sufficlent number of members of the next House of Commons to enable him to secure at least an opening wedge of legislation looking to practical home rule for Ireland at no distant day. It is generally thought that he will, and in that connection it is significant of the spread of democracy in England that no thought is given to or apprehension felt of the House of Lords interposing its veto upon anything that may be accomplished for Ireland's good by combinations which the nationalists may

Another leading question of interest

WASHINGTON CRITIC in the elections is whether there shall be a Liberal or Conservative Govern ment-whether Lord Salisbury shall continue as Premier or whether Mr. Habstone dual return again to that then office. But the importance of the settlement of that question is not very great as it would appear to be on difference between the governments Hey of Lord Salisbury and that of Mr. Gladstone, the only real point of difference being that the Conservative or Tory Government has been more generous in dealing with Ireland. And even that generosity was induced by a desire to gain the Parnell or National ist support to aid in the contest for a

Parliamentary majority. The most important question, however, connected with the election has to do with the working of the elective franchise under the new Redistribution act, the main feature of which is the large number of new voters created by This number is about two million. and as the newly enfranchised citizens are of the humbler and poorer class, the result of the pending and of the last Parlamentary elections, when compared, will give a more accurate idea than overnment. It will not be a perfect reflex of the etual sentiments of the people referred o because they are handling something altogether new to them and are still creatly under the influence of the quires and rectors.

ver before conveyed as to what a very goodly portion of the bone and sinew

f Great Britain think in the matter of

The somewhat general idea that the membership of the House of Commens is largely increased by the Redisribution act is erroneous. The only ictual increase will be in twenty members for Scotland, which will make the total membership 670. England retains her 465 seats. Wales her 30, Ireland her 102, while Scotland will enjoy 72, instend of 52, members. But while there has been but such a slight change in membership there has been wrought a most important change through the abolition of "pocket" and "rotten" boroughs where twenty or so voter. could return a Member of Parliament. Electoral affairs have thus been evened Another point of interest is that the redistribution is for England, Ireland and Scotland as a Union. This is the first redistribution bill of the kind that England has ever had. In former redistributions there were separate Eng lish, Scotch and Irish bills.

THE Porte, at the instance of Russia and England, dispatched a note to King Milan advising him to stop the war. We think the note has been sent to the wrong man. King Milan and his soldiers have received on an average two good lickings a day for a week past and have got all they want of it while Prince Alexander and his victo rious Bulgarians are so enthusiastic that they had rather fight than eat. That Porte-English-Russia note should have been sent to Alexander. The other fellow is willing enough to stop fighting if somebody will only pull the other fellow off.

THAT rash and noisy young man, Lord Randolph Churchill, was defeated in his contest for Birmingham vesterday, and that staunch old Radical. John Bright, was returned. Young men of young Churchill's calibre should be careful how they buck against a buzz-saw of John Bright dimensions.

Aut the heads of departments exent Attorney General Garland hav directed that their officers and employed be paid to day in order that prepara tions may be made for to-morrow. We judge from this that the Attorney-General had a turkey sent to him from his

How the Servians, after their aggres ive and successful fighting for a couple of days, came to "peter out" so effectually is explained by an act of the Austrian Emperor. Franz Joseph, has sent a million cigarettes for the relief of the Servian sick and wounded.

THE ladies of Atlanta, at the election in that city to-day, will furnish a free lunch to all who vote the Prohibition ticket. The saloon keeper, it is to be supposed, will also extend the usual free-lunch courtesies.

IN THE storm and unprecedented high tide on the Jersey coast during the las forty-eight hours only one shipwreck, that of the British iron ship Malta, occurred. The Malta went ashore at Ocean Beach, about eight miles below Long Branch, There were twenty-five persons on board, of whom all except one were saved by the life-saving ien. The latter would not have been los had be been willing to trust himself to the rescuers. He jumped overboard and was drowned. The United States Life-Saving Service is second to none in the world. It s capable of almost anything in its line of duty, but it cannot save a man who will EDITOR CRITIC: We call earnestly upon all business men, in the interests of both themselves and their clerks and employes and also their respective families, to keep their stores and offices closed the entire day their stores and offices closed the entire day to morrow, so that Thanksgiving Day may be observed by all alike and in all its integrity. Let there be one good, full "home" day, with all the dear ones together, all the day long, at the home, at church and in visiting relatives and friends, and also the poor and the sick and distressed. We have too few holidays, and in the hot and eager pursuit of business and money-getting, many are certainly too much absorbed in their own interests to think of and justly care for the interests of others dependent upon them.

Ex-Sunaton Bannum of Connecticut Mayor Courtenay of Charleston, S. C., and Charles J. Bonaparte of Baltimore were registered in New York yesterday.

SENATOR EVALUE thinks the next national Democratic ticket will be Hembricks and Hill. Verhaps the Republican ticket will be Evarts and Eikins.—[Eric Observer. SAYS THE NEW YORK World "There is apparently no change in the condition of Mr. John Kelly. No one is allowed to see him and reports about his health are of an indirect character."

MADAME CECTLIA CHARMER, who died in Mobile last week at an advanced age, saw the first Napoleon walking in the garden of the Tullories when she was a little girl.
She also remembered having seen Louis
XVIII. and the Duches of Angoulame, laughter of Marie Antoinette.

GOVERNOR CAMERON has appointed as lelegates-at-large from Virginia to the Farmers' National Congress, which is to meet in Instanapolis, December 2: Colonel Randolph Harrison, State Commissioner of Agriculture, and Colonel Robert Barnes of Tazewell. There are also District delegates. Ranni Mosas of Louisville, Ky., was on he platform of the Unitarian Church of the Messiah, in that city, on Sunday, and lis-tened to a sermon delivered by the Rev. C. K. Jones, the pastor, on "The Jew and Evolution," The rabbi gave out the clos-ing hymn, and stood by the pastor while he unced the benediction Manager Monagers has dressed with her own hands for the doll exhibit in Louisiana woman's work at the New Orleans Expo stion, a little image in the character of the Scottish Mary. She writes to the Superin-tendent: "The dress is a faithful copy of my own dress in the last act of 'Mary Sta-art,' and was taken from the British arch-ives and the most authentic portraits."

MRS. C. H. WASHBURN and Miss E. M. Hatch are the lady members of the Boston Globe's staff. Mrs. Sallie Joy White, a clever reporter and paragraphist, is on the Astrolice. Mrs. E. B. Ellis is society el-titor of the Herold. Lillian Whiting is the book reviewer and literary editor of the book reviewer and literary editor of the Truckler, besides writing correspondence for leading journals in other cities. One of the wittlest of paragraphists is Miss Georgia Hamlin, who writes for the Truncript, Heraid and the Pilot. Miss Midret Aldrich is assistant editor of the Boston Hames Comment.

THINGS TO BE THANKFUL FOR. That "The Breakfast Table Letters" will appear as usual next Saturday.

That the untrammeled Carric is still in our midst. That the District Democrats are going to get some offices—after awhile.

That Miss Mollie Anderson, having beome English, you know, she will not have to send Dr. Ham Griffin out with some of her hard-earned money to buy a turkey. That Mr. Randall is in favor of a revision of the tariff, because this will induce fewer speeches when that subject comes up for ongressional consideration That the Hon, S. S. Cox has not become avolved in the Eastern war. That some Democrats have secured the wherewithal to buy Thanksgiving dinners after twenty years' hard and persistent

That Mr. Higgins is healthy. That the voices of the Mugwump and of the dodo are no longer heard in the land. That the Washington correspondents have given us the President's message in

That the District is likely to get a day or was on the face of the Louisiana moon. That as the mercury goes down the circulation of THE CRITIC goes up.

That everybody in Washington will get a good Thanksgiving dinner if THE CRITIC'S advice be taken. That there is no particular danger just new of the Washington Monument being struck by lightning. That business is likely to improve in Washington this winter in spite of Civil-Service Reform.

That the street railroad companies are not oing to increase the rates of transporta-

That THE CRITIC is still able to be up and about. That the atmosphere has now grown clear, Which yesterday was murky; That there's every promise of good cheer— And the turkey; oh! the turkey!
